During his conversation with the American Minister to Syria, he stressed that the US and Egypt are "natural allies."

Comment: Various Egyptian as well as Arab officials have approached US representatives with the suggestion that the United States solve the present Anglo-Egyptian dispute. However, none has offered realistic proposals as to how a solution might be achieved, nor have there been any firm indications that the Egyptian Government is willing to make a realistic compromise.

_	passage:
	In response to French inquiries, Chancellor Adenauer's State Secretary for Internal Affairs has stated that the Schuman Plan's ratification would be considered in the Parliament as soon
-	as the Plan is brought before the French Assembly. Upon the receipt of this statement, the French informed the German Government that final Assembly ratification would probably take place in two weeks' time. Hence coalition parties in the German Parliament are considering placing the matter on the agenda in the next fortnight.

The floor leader of the coalition Free Democrats has predicted that the Plan will be ratified by a substantial majority vote.

Comment: Final balloting in the German Parliament on the Schuman Plan has been considerably delayed. When the bill was passed at its first reading in July, the Chancellor intended to present it for final passage in September. At that time, however, he decided not to do so until the French Government had taken further action.

Whether or not the French Assembly will complete its debate of the Plan within two weeks is problematical. The French Government, however, feels that it can rally sufficient votes to pass the Plan.
